A note from our Executive Director Jenny Stadler

[Image of Jenny Stadler smiling]

Our theme this year—The Art of Giving—is not merely a celebration of the visual arts. It’s an acknowledgment of the life-changing power of the arts, and the importance of supporting the artists who grace our lives.

I know I’ve experienced spine-tingling, jaw-dropping emotion looking at a painting, hearing music, or watching a play. Great art can tell a story, illustrate history, convey emotion, persuade us about injustice, and provide comfort and healing ... sometimes all at once.

Yet so often art is not seen as human right, but instead as an afterthought when it comes to funding priorities. While the power of the arts is intangible, artists still have practical needs—including needing a place to go to create their art. They also need to have their right to express themselves respected.

Our gala is a celebration of the artists that PHAME teaches, nurtures and grows. And it is also a celebration of you, PHAME’s friends and stakeholders, who recognize that we need to stand up for art, both individually and as a community.

Thank you being here tonight to celebrate and support our artists, and to acknowledge the importance of art in all of our lives.

Warmly,

Jenny R. Stadler, Ph.D. | Executive Director
